Grant's Book.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

NEW YORK, June 8.—The Commercial Advertiser publishes nearly a page of extracts from General Grant's "Personal Memoirs," which will be published within a few months. The first volume is completed and the second nearly so. The extracts given show the work to be written in a terse and sturdy Anglo-Saxon with here and there a touch of quiet humor. The dedication is the fac simile of the general's manuscript and reads as follows:

"These volumes are dedicated to American soldiers and sailors.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT."

New York, May 23, 1885.

He begins by saying he is of American stock on both sides for many generations. He gives anecdotes of his boyhood; of his appointment through the influence of Hon. Holmes Morris; tells the circumstances under which he first saw General Scott and President Van Buren; contrasts the personal characteristics of Generals Scott and Taylor; gives a copy of his letter to Adjutant-General Thomas, dated at Galena, Ills., May 24, 1861, offering his services to the United States, and suggesting that he considered himself competent to take command of a regiment. This letter was never answered and was for a long time lost among the papers of the war office. Speaking of his first battle in the civil war he says:

"As we approached the brow of the hill from which it was expected we could see Harris' camp and possibly find his men already formed to meet us, my heart kept getting higher and higher until it felt to me as if it was in my throat. I would have given anything then to have been back in Illinois; but I had not the moral courage to halt and consider what to do. I kept right on and when we reached a point from which the valley below was in full view I halted. The place where Harris had been encamped a few days before was still there and the marks of a recent encampment plainly visible; but the troops were gone. My heart resumed its place. It occurred to me at once that Harris had been as much afraid of me as I had been of him. This was a view of the question I had never taken before, but was one I never forgot afterwards. From that event to the close of the war I never experienced trepidation upon confronting an enemy."

He speaks of the battle of Fort Donnelson at some length. Speaking of the battle of Shiloh he says he considered the situation as one in which the federal forces were on the offensive, but asserts that no precautions for defense were neglected. On this subject he continues as follows:

"General Beauregard was next in rank to Johnson and succeeded to the command which he retained to the close of the battle and during the subsequent retreat on Corinth, as well as in the siege of that place, his tactics have been severely criticised by confederate writers, but I do not believe his fallen chief could have done any better under the circumstances. Some of these critics claim that Shiloh was won when Johnson fell, and that if he had not fallen, the army under me would have been annihilated or captured. 'Ifs' defeated the Confederates at Shiloh. There is little doubt that we should have been disgracefully beaten 'if,' all the shells and bullets fired by us had passed harmlessly over the enemy, if all theirs had taken effect. The commanding generals are liable to be killed during an engagement, and the fact that when he was shot, Johnson was leading a brigade to induce it to make a charge, which had been repeatedly ordered, is evidence that there was neither the universal demoralization on our side, nor the unbounded confidence on theirs which has been claimed. There was, in fact, no hour during the day when I doubted the eventual result of the battle."

Then follows accounts of the siege and capture of Vicksburg, of his appointment as lieutenant general, and adds:

"In my first interview with Mr. Lincoln alone, he stated to me that he had never professed to be a military man or to know how campaigns should be conducted, and never wanted to interfere in them; but that procrastination on the part of commanders and the pressure of the people at the north and of congress, which, like the poor, he had always with him, had forced him into issuing his well known series of "executive orders." He did not know but they were all wrong and did not know that some of them were. All he wanted, or had ever wanted, he said, was that some one would take the responsibility and act and call on him for all the assistance needed."

Describing his command of the division of the Mississippi, he tells how he met Secretary Stanton at Indianapolis; how they went together to Louisville and adds:

"Soon after we started, the secretary handed me two orders saying that I could take my choice of them. The two were identical in all but one particular. Both created the "military division of the Mississippi," giving me the command, composed of the departments of the Ohio, the Cumberland and the Tennessee and all the territory from the Alleghenies to the Mississippi river north of Bank's command in the southwest. One order left the department commanders as they were while the other relieved Rosecrans and assigned Thomas to his place. I accepted the latter."

He says Secretary Stanton caught a cold on that trip from which he has never recovered. He gives a graphic description of how Chattanooga was saved; of how he was sent for in haste at night by Secretary Stanton, whom he found "pacing the floor rapidly, in about the garb Mr. Jefferson was wearing, subsequently when he was captured—a dressing gown—but without the shawl and sunbonnet."

General Grant adds: "Heshowed me the dispatch, saying that the retreat must be prevented. I immediately wrote an order assuming command of the military division of the Mississippi and telegraphed it to General Rosecrans. I then telegraphed him the order from Washington, assigning to Thomas the command of the army of the Cumberland, and to Thomas that he must hold Chatanooga at all hazards."

He describes the Wilderness campaign and estimates Lee's strength at 80,000 and says that he was operating in a country with which his army was thoroughly familiar and which to the federal force was entirely unknown.

He tells of Lee's surrender and takes occasion in the course of it to explode the famous story of the surrender under the apple tree. He says that there was an apple orchard across the little valley from the court house, one tree of which was close to the roadside that General Babcock reported to him (Grant) that he had found General Lee sitting under the tree and had brought him within the federal lines to the house of a man named McLean, where the confederate general and one of his staff were awaiting General Grant. Of their interview he says:

"When I went into the house I found General Lee. We greeted each other and after shaking hands took our seats. What his feelings were I do not know, being a man of much dignity and unreadable face. It was impossible to say whether he felt inwardly glad that the end had finally come, or whether he felt sadly over the result and was too manly to show it. Whatever his feelings were, they were entirely concealed; but my own feelings, which had been quite apparent on the receipt of his letter, were sad and depressed. I felt like anything rather than rejoicing at the downfall of a foe that had fought so long and gallantly and had suffered so much for a cause which I believed to be one of the worst for which a people ever fought, and for which there was not the least pretext. I do not question, however, the sincerity of the great mass of those who were opposed to me. General Lee was dressed in full uniform, entirely new, and wearing a sword of considerable value, very like the one presented to him by the state of Virginia, at all events it was entirely different from the one he wore ordinarily. In my rough travelling suit, which was the uniform of a private with the straps of a general, I must have contrasted very strangely with a man so handsomely dressed, six feet high and of faultless form, but this was not a matter that I thought of until afterward. General Lee and I soon fell into a conversation about old army times. He remarked that he remembered me very well in the old army, and I told him, as a matter of course, I remembered him perfectly well, but owing to the difference in years, there being about 16 years difference in our ages and our rank, I thought it very likely I had not attracted his attention sufficiently to be remembered after so long a time. Our conversation grew so pleasant that I almost forgot the object of our meeting."

BEATEN BY BEER.

The British Government Defeated, In Its Attempt to Tax Wines, Amid Great Tumult.

The Members of the Royal Cabinet Resign Their Places with Alarming Haste.

The Overthrow of the Nation's Policy Disturbs the Finances and Creates a Surprise.

THE TAX ON SPIRITS.

The British Government Defeated in Its Aim to Increase the Duty.

By Cable to THE SENTINEL.

LONDON, June 9.—In the house of commons last night Mr. Childers, chancellor of the exchequer, announced that the government had decided not to refund to the tax-payers the amount of the increased duty on spirits paid over and above the extra shilling per gallon finally decided on, because consumers had been charged higher rates after the announcements of the original increase. As soon as Mr. Childers sat down a violent debate ensued, some opposed the high tax on wines, others favored it, while others held the spirits as necessary as tea or other household liquid.

Mr. Childers moved the second reading of the budget, and, in his supporting speech, explained that of the total increase in the beer and spirit duties England pays seven-ninths, Scotland one-ninth, and Ireland one-ninth.

Sir Charles Dilke supported the budget. He said that tea was already taxed enough. A further tax on wines would not be very productive, and would injure colonian trade.

Sir Stafford Northcote and others having spoken, Mr. Gladstone arose to say that he thought the opposition was creating a precedent which they would regret when they came into power again. The previous reduction of wine duties had a beneficial effect in preventing adulterations and increasing trade many hundred times. It would be most impolitic to increase the wine duty unless under the most extreme pressure. The government was compelled to raise money in view of the impending danger to the empire—a danger which, even now, he was unable to say had passed away. The opposition cavilled at this mode of raising the money without suggesting an alternative. Tea would require an additional tax of three pence per pound to produce the same amount as the tax proposed on spirits. The government had to choose between alcoholic liquors and tea and sugar. They would accept the issue of the vote as one of life and death, and did not envy those who, if they gained a victory, would have to bear the consequences.

Mr. Gladstone's remarks were received with prolonged cheers. The government was defeated on the second reading, the budget being rejected 264 to 225. When the result was announced, Lord Randolph Churchill and Mr. Parnell jumped upon their seats and enthusiastically waved their hats, and the cheering was renewed. Thirty-nine Parnellites and all the conservatives voted with the majority. The minority included Sir Michael Bass, the brewer, and several Irish members.

The following is another account of the scenes in the house of commons after the division: When the result of the division was announced, Mr. Gladstone, who had been leaning forward in his seat and cynically smiling, started, turned pale, and clutched his hands together nervously. Members, standing and waving hats, neckties and handkerchiefs. There was a tumultuous cheering from the galleries, as the Parnellites yelled at Gladstone: "This is the price of coercion!" "Down with Buckshot Forster." "Remember Miles Joyce."

Mr. Gladstone rose to move an adjournment, but stood in his place fully a minute before he could be heard.

THE CABINET RESIGNS.

LONDON, June 9.—The cabinet council was convened at noon and was in session until 1:15 o'clock. It is understood the situation was thoroughly discussed, and it was decided that, in view of the defeat last night on the budget tax, it would be inconsistent for the members of the cabinet to remain any longer in office and it was resolved that their resignations be tendered the queen at once.

This decision of the cabinet has caused a feverish feeling on the stock exchange and consuls have declined 3 1-16, while Russian securities are ¼c lower. In all the provincial exchanges there is a weak feeling and in financial circles it is more marked, as is also the decline in above government bonds.

A CAUSTIC IRISH CRITICISM.

DUBLIN, June 9.—The Freeman's Journal, commenting on the defeat of the government on the budget, says: "The defeat is due to the action of the Parnellites in refusing to uphold the cabinet from which they received nothing but broken promises, and from which Ireland could expect nothing but injustice, as was foreshadowed in the proposed attempt to again fasten upon Ireland the iniquitous provisions of the crimes act. The result of the vote last night will cause Earl Spencer and his lieutenants at the castle to quit Ireland leaving behind them the memory of an administration pre-eminently noted for cold-blooded brutality and frigid, calculating injustice."

THE DEFEAT A SURPRISE.

LONDON, June 9.—It is reported today that the tories will, in case the cabinet resigns, refuse to accept office. If this be true the government will then finish the supply measure, drop all bills to which strong opposition is made and dissolve. Great surprise is expressed at the defeat of the government. It was expected that an effort would be made last night to prevent the proposed increase of duties upon beer and spirits, but there was no idea that the opposition would overturn the cabinet. It seems to be regarded as extremely doubtful whether the ministers could resign and leave unfinished so many important matters relating to both home and foreign affairs. Nothing could be more untoward than the present crisis. Apparently men of all parties are of the opinion that the government should at least remain provisionally until after the general elections.

THE CABINET RESIGNATION ANNOUNCED.

LONDON, June 9.—Mr. Gladstone has announced to parliament the resignation of the cabinet.

The defeat of the government has produced a general depression on the stock exchange.

GLADSTONE'S OVATION.

LONDON, June 9.—Mr. Gladstone, a few minutes after 4 this afternoon, entered the house of commons. He was loudly cheered by the radical members. The chamber was fairly rent with cheer after cheer, and the applause became an ovation. At last Mr. Gladstone arose in deference to the greeting. He said the cabinet on assembling to-day thought they were under obligations to submit a dutiful communication to the queen. It would be premature on his part to enter into the particulars concerning the nature of that communication just now. He would say, however, that, as on former occasions, a few days must elapse before the result of that communication could be arrived at, so as to be made known to the house. During the interval, Mr. Gladstone continued, the house would follow its usual custom in refraining from the transaction of its ordinary business and he would move that the house on rising do adjourn until Friday.

ADJOURN UNTIL FRIDAY.

5 p. m.—The house of commons and house of lords have adjourned until Friday.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

BONHAM, Tex., June 9.—A lynching occurred here at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. An mob of over 100 masked men entered the jail and took out Sam Dyer and his brother, Eli Dyer, white men, the murderers of Sheriff Ragsdale and Deputy Sheriff Buchanan of this county. They identified their men and then stuffed their mouths with pocket handkerchiefs and after tying their hands they hurried them outside, where the main body of the mob stood. The jailor says scarcely a word was spoken during the proceedings. They marched them to a spot only 300 yards from the jail, where both were hung to a tree. Sam begged piteously for his life. He said Eli had killed both Ragsdale and Buchanan. Eli maintained a bold front, and would say nothing except "It's no use."

He resigned to engage in the practice of law some time ago, but has been holding over, waiting the appointment of a successor. No one has yet been selected by Secretary Manning, but with notice of Colonel Alexander's peremptory retirement, a new fifth auditor may be looked for. Mr. Alexander will attend the National encampment at Portland, Me., on the 18th of July.

THE Pacific slope millionaires watch each other like hawks. Relations between Flood and Senator Fair have been known to be inharmonious for some time. The story of Flood's friends is that Fair did something which so incensed Flood that he determined to make Fair retire from the bank or buy out himself and Mackay. Fair declares that Flood wanted to be free from the routine of bank management and hence proposed the sale of his interest. Whichever is true, the fact is that Flood and Fair both transferred their interest in the bank to Mackay, Flood retaining the nominal Presidency until next fall.

THE close physical resemblance of the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher to the Rev. Robert Collyer was much remarked a few days ago, when those gentlemen sat near each other on the stage of the Madison-square Theater, at the authors' readings. Each has long flowing white hair, brushed back from a high forehead, a very florid complexion, a robust frame, and large features, and each is often taken for the other. They are much nearer alike in appearance than most brothers are, and sometimes at a public dinner can scarcely be distinguished apart, even by those who know them fairly well, save that the Rev. Mr. Collyer's head is surrounded by faint wreaths of smoke. They both sit erect when facing a crowd, and much more quiet than many younger men. Mr. Beecher resting his hands, one after the other, by placing them partly in his trousers pockets.

The symptoms of that most distressing complaint, asthma, are difficulty in breathing or power to inspire sufficient air to fill the lungs. Although a nervous affection, it is often connected with actual changes in the lungs themselves. The oppression in breathing is sometimes affected by very slight causes, such as changes in the weather, anxiety, fatigue, errors in diet, etc. The affection as a rule is more liable to occur in middle age, and men are more liable to it than women. Mishler's Herb Bitters has an extra good record in relieving asthmatic patients.

Frances E. Townley, a woman, has been formally ordained in Nebraska as a Baptist clergyman.

A Few Citizens.

Andrew D. White, President of Cornell University; John B. Gough, the celebrated temperance lecturer; W. H. Goodrich, of the Hartford Courant; M. M. Cohen, of the New York Graphic, are a few of the last correspondents who send their grateful testimony to the virtues of Pond's Extract, in such phrases as these: "Simply invaluable!" "Have derived great benefit!" "A necessity in my family!" "Astonished at its wonderful effect!" "Pre-eminently the best!" These utterances are from the bodies of letters relating the wonderful cures by Pond's Extract. The list can be multiplied almost indefinitely where the most stubborn cases of Inflammation, Piles, Hemorrhages, Sore Throats, Boils, Burns and Bruises have been cured at once. Be careful to get the genuine.

President Garfield's son graduate from Williams college this year.

The use of Iodoform or mercurials in the treatment of catarrh—whether in the form of suppositories or ointments—should be avoided, as they are both injurious and dangerous. Iodoform is easily detected by its offensive odor. The only reliable catarrh remedy on the market to-day is Ely's Cream Balm, being free from all poisonous drugs. It has cured thousands of chronic and acute cases, where all other remedies have failed. A particle is applied into each nostril; no pain; agreeable to use. Price fifty cents; of druggists.

If you have a sore throat, a cough or a cold, try H. B. Douglass & Sons' Capsicum Cough Drops; they are pleasant to the taste, perfectly harmless and will surely cure you.

Morphine eaters not only lose their hair, but their teeth.

GRANDMOTHER

Used herbs in doctoring the family, and her simple remedies DID CURE in most cases. Without the use of herbs, medical science would be powerless; and yet the tendency of the times is to neglect the best of all remedies for those powerful medicines that seriously injure the system.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

is a combination of valuable herbs, carefully compounded from the formula of a regular Physician, who used this prescription largely in his private practice with great success. It is not a drink, but a medicine used by many physicians. It is invaluable for DYSPEPSIA, NERVOUS and LIVER COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, WEAKNESS, INDIGESTION, &c., and while curing will not hurt the system.

Mr. C. J. Rhodes, a well-known ironman of Safe Harbor, Pa., writes:

"My wife was completely prostrated by fever and ague. Quinine and bark did her no good. I then sent for Mishler's Herb Bitters and in a short time the boy was quite well."

"E. A. Schellentrager, Druggist, 717 St. Clair Street, Cleveland, O., writes:

"Your Bitters, I can say and do say, are prescribed by some of the oldest and most prominent physicians in our city."

S. S. S.
Typhoid Fever.

I am sixty-seven years old, and have lived in this Hall county all my life. Up to twenty-eight years ago I was regarded as the strongest man in the neighborhood—the most robust in health. In November, 1858, I had a long and serious spell of typhoid fever. It left me emaciated and helpless in my left leg. At times that limb was swollen to an enormous size, being twice as large as its natural condition, and inflamed and angry in appearance. From my knee down small sores came, and at the ankle a large ulcer came, which discharged poisonous matter. My whole system became infected. The doctors would patch me up for awhile, but the ulcer would never heal. The mercury and potash with which they doped me brought on rheumatism and dyspepsia. I was an object of pity to all my friends. Some thought that the only hope to save life was amputation. I continued to grow worse, and for three years have not worn a shoe. Hope had almost left me. Swift's Specific was suggested, and I commenced its use at once. From the very first I began to feel better. I have taken thirty six bottles, and the shadows which have darkened my life for twenty-eight years have all been dissipated. The effect of the medicine has been wonderful indeed. To-day I am able to attend to all my farming interests, and walk from one to five miles per day. I am satisfied that the disease is entirely broken up, and henceforth I am to be free from those terrible apprehensions and suffering which formerly made my life miserable. Swift's Specific has done more for me in one year than all the other store medicine prescribed by physicians did in twenty-eight years, and I most cheerfully bear this testimony of its merits. WM. B. REED.

Hall County, Ga., Feb. 28, 1885.

FROM THE DISSECTING ROOM.

Having taken Swift's Specific for blood poison contracted at a medical college at a dissection, while I was a medical student, I am grateful to say that it gave me a speedy and thorough cure after my parents had spent hundreds of dollars for treatment. My arm was swollen to twice its usual size, and as nothing helped me I was dreaming of never being cured. But hearing of S. S. S., I bought a bottle little thinking I would derive any benefit from it. I began taking it regularly, and soon the swelling began to go down and the arm ceased to pain me. I continued its use, and after taking eight bottles was thoroughly cured. AUGUSTUS WENDEL.

The Nickel Plate Organization Scheme.

Col. J. C. Reiff, secretary of the Nickel Plate bondholders' committee, has issued a circular stating that "default having been made in the payment of the interest due June 1, 1885, notice has been given to the trustee to take proper legal proceedings to enforce the rights of bondholders."

A new plan for the reorganization of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis railroad (Nickel Plate) is in circulation. It is presumably in the interest of the Lake Shore, for it leaves that company in control. The plan offers a 4 per cent. first mortgage bond for the face of the present 6 per cent. bonds and 25 per cent. additional in income bonds.

A SINGULAR BOOK.

Scintillating with Sarcasm and Brilliant with Truth.

New York Correspondence American Rural Home.

Chapter I. "Has Malaria;" goes to Florida.

Chapter II. "Overworked;" goes to Europe.

Chapter III. "Has Rheumatism;" goes to Ems.

Chapter IV. Has a row with his Doctor.

The above chapters, Mr. Editor, I find in a book recently published by an anonymous author. I have read a deal of sarcasm in my day but I never read anything equal to the sarcasm herein contained. I suspect the experience portrayed is a personal one; in short, the author intimates as much on page 31. Let me give you a synopsis:

"Malaria," as it states, is the cloak with which superficial physicians cover up a multitude of ill feelings which they do not understand or do not much care to investigate. It is also a cover for such diseases as they cannot cure. When they advise their patient to travel or that he has overworked and needs rest and is probably suffering from malaria, it is a confession of ignorance or of inability. The patient goes abroad. The change is a tonic and for a time he feels better. Come home. Pickle appetite, frequent headaches, severe colds, cramps, sleeplessness, irritability, tired feelings and general unfitness for business are succeeded in due time by alarming attacks of rheumatism which flits about his body regardless of all human feelings.

It is muscular—in his back. Articular—in his joints. Inflammatory, my! how he fears it will fly to his heart! Now off he goes to the springs. The doctor sends him there, of course, to get well; at the same time he does not really want him to die on his hands.

That would hurt his business.

Better for a few days. Returns. After a while neuralgia transfixes him. He bloats; cannot breathe; has pneumonia; cannot walk; cannot sleep on his left side; is fretful; very nervous and irritable; is pale and flabby; has frequent chills and fever; everything about him seems to go wrong; becomes suspicious; musters up strength and demands to know what is killing him!

"Great heaven!" he cries. "Why have you kept me so long in ignorance?"

"Because," said the doctor, "I read your fate five years ago. I thought best to keep you comfortable and ignorant of the facts."

He dismisses his doctor, but too late! His fortune his all gone to fees.

But him; what became of him?

The other day a well known Wall street banker said to me: "It is really astonishing how general Bright's disease is becoming. Two of my personal friends are now dying of it. But it is not incurable, I am certain, for my nephew was recently cured when his physicians said recovery was impossible. The case seems to me to be a wonderful one." This gentleman formerly represented his government in a foreign country. He knows, appreciates and declares the value of that preparation, because his nephew, who is a son of Danish Vice-Consul Schmidt, was pronounced incurable, when the remedy, Warner's Safe Cure, was begun. "Yes," said his father, "I was very skeptical but since taking that remedy the boy is well."

I regret to note that ex-President Arthur is said to be a victim of this terrible disease. He ought to live, but the probabilities are that since authorized remedies can not cure him, his physicians will not advise him to save his life, as so many thousands have done by the use of Warner's Safe Cure, which General Christiansen, at Drexel, Morgan & Co.'s told me he regarded "as a wonderful remedy."

Well, I suspect the hero of the book cured himself by the same means. The internal evidence points very strongly to this conclusion.

I cannot close my notice of this book better than by quoting his advice to his readers:

"If, my friend, you have such an experience as I have portrayed, do not put your trust in physicians to the exclusion of other remedial agencies. They have no monopoly over disease and I personally know that many of them are so very 'conscientious' that they would far prefer that their patients should go to Heaven direct from their powerless hands than that they should be saved to earth by the use of any 'unauthorized' means."

And that the author's condemnation is too true, how many thousands duped and yet rescued, as he was, can personally testify?

Fort Wayne Paint and Color Works,

No. 12 West Columbia Street Fort Wayne, Indiana.

To Painters

And others wanting First-class Paints: Do you know that you have in Fort Wayne a Manufacturer of Mixed Paint and Grinder of Colors, where you can buy your Paints from first hand instead of paying the middle man his profits, which are from 25 to 33½ per cent. O. L. STARKEY, the Painter and proprietor of the Fort Wayne Paint and Color Works, came to Fort Wayne in April, 1856, and is identified as one of the old citizens who has helped build up Fort Wayne, and his knowledge of Paints and the composition of pigments to form different shades and tints is well-known to the public, and his long practical experience in painting gives him the knowledge of Paints that a mere dealer cannot have for he does not know anything about Paints, as he buys them ready made up and he cannot tell you what it takes to make this or that shade. All he knows is what the label on the can says. Neither can he tell you shades that will or will not fade. By buying your Paints of O. L. STARKEY you can get all the information you want. I am making Liquid Paints in all shades and colors; also the same shades and colors in paste form, the same thickness as white lead and requires thinning down the same as white lead. In making the different shades my formulas are all registered giving the amount of each color it takes to form certain shades all thoroughly mixed together in the powder mills, then wet down and run through a mixing machine, and from there to the mills where it is all ground together making a pigment that cannot be made by hand. Call or send and get some of my sample cards of colors and tints; also see elevations of gothic houses colored up with four and five shades, which will give you a good idea how to paint and ornament the outside of your houses.

I say again, do not buy of the middle man if you want to save money. I will guarantee my prices and quality of goods with any manufacturer in the United States.

NOT NOTORIOUS.

Lafayette when it tries real hard can be quite lively. Indeed it tries so hard sometimes as to strain itself on occasions. Such was the case yesterday. Shortly after 11 o'clock, in the forenoon, Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, who recently attended the State Woman's Christian Temperance union in this city, suffering over an attack upon her fair name and immaculate reputation in the "Man About Town" column of the Lafayette Sunday Times, made a personal attack upon Col. John S. Williams in front of the Lahr house. The "Man About Town" in that "breezy, charming fashion" that has made the column so entertaining, contained several soft impeachments of the little woman's spotless character, but the bright particular one, the breeziest perhaps, the one which stood out like a wart on a Chinaman's chin was the following:

Will the present postmaster of Lafayette be removed, is a subject that engages the attention of hundreds of democrats. I confess I don't know. I am told that one of the candidates has had the stuffing knocked out of his prospects by the interference of a notorious female in his behalf. I shouldn't wonder.

"I was very indignant," said Mrs. Gougar, "and told my husband that he must do something, and advised him to get a heavy cane, take a strong man with him and give John S. Williams a sound thrashing; also to give him to understand that if his attacks continued stronger means would be used to compel him to stop.

"My husband, dear, good man that he is, advised me to do nothing about it, and, as you may imagine, this made me very angry, and I decided to take the law into my own hands.

"I was passing the Lahr house when John S. Williams stepped out. I raised my umbrella and with, 'You villain! the scurrilous articles in the Sunday Times must be stopped now and henceforth,' brought it down, aiming at his face, but he threw up his hands, exclaiming: 'I didn't write it; I didn't, I didn't,' and the umbrella being warded off, simply struck him lightly on the shoulder. I raised it to strike again, but he caught hold of it and with his cane struck me a heavy blow on the head, then let go his hold and rushed into the Lahr house."

The Special Election.

The election for councilmen in the Third and Eighth wards resulted in the selection of Dr. Henry A. Read, democrat, in the Third, and Frank Gocke in the Eighth, just as THE SENTINEL predicted last night. Their republican opponents were D. C. Fisher and William Ketler. The vote resulted:

THIRD WARD.

First precinct—Read, 164; Fisher, 108; Read's majority, 56.

Second precinct—Fisher, 114; Read, 66; Fisher's majority, 48.

Total majority for Read, 8.

EIGHTH WARD.

First precinct—Gocke, 114; Ketler, 36; Gocke's majority, 78.

Second precinct—Gocke, 220; Ketler, 75; Gocke's majority, 145.

Gocke's total majority, 223.

Messrs. Gocke and Read qualified as councilmen to-day and will sit in the council to-night.
